FEATURED ARTICLES

2 The Year 2012: South Korea's Resumption of Wartime Operational Control

Lieutenant Colonel James M. Minnich, U.S. Army

The United States must unencumber its forces from a peninsula-centric mission in Korea and transform the ROK-U.S. relationship into a strategic alliance for the 21st century.

8 Maintaining the Combat Edge

Major General Michael S. Tucker, U.S. Army, with Major Jason P. Conroy, U.S. Army

The Army's gains in stability and counterinsurgency skills have come at the expense of its ability to conduct major combat operations. This imbalance must be corrected before the expertise of our field grade officers and senior NCOs is lost.

17 Preparing Soldiers to Help Foreign Partners Meet 21st Century Challenges

Brigadier General Edward P. Donnelly, U.S. Army, and Lieutenant Colonel Robert Maginnis, U.S. Army, Retired

Security cooperation will play as great a role in an era of persistent conflict as deterrence did during the Cold War. The Army must integrate security cooperation into its training, doctrine, and education.

25 The Fight for the Village: Southern Afghanistan, 2010

Lieutenant Colonel Brian Petit, U.S. Army

The future of Afghanistan may not be won in the villages, but history teaches us that it will not be won without them. Here are five observations about village stability operations.

33 The Afghan Balance of Power and the Culture of Jihad

Lieutenant Colonel John J. Malevich, Canadian Army, and Daryl C. Youngman, Kansas State University
Population-centric COIN has been misinterpreted as "getting them to like us," with no genuine understanding of the root causes of the Afghan insurgency.

40 Two Tours in Afghanistan: Twenty Years and Two Armies Apart

Major Eero Kinnunen, Estonian Defense Forces, and Lieutenant Colonel Lester W. Grau, U.S. Army, Retired

One leader's reminiscences of his combat time in Afghanistan, serving first in the Soviet Army against the Mujahideen and then with the Estonian Army against the Taliban.

50 Neuroscience for Combat Leaders: A Brain-Based Approach to Leading on the Modern Battlefield

Major Andrew Steadman, U.S. Army

Educating soldiers about brain function and incorporating cognitive stressors into training helps them perform with emotional stability.

62 Wartime Sourcing: Building Capability and Predictability through Continuity

Lieutenant Colonel Heather Reed, U.S. Army

Continuity of unit and augmented sourcing can benefit both the soldiers' welfare and mission effectiveness. The quality of dwell time should be considered, not merely its quantity.

70 Death from Above: UAVs and Losing Hearts and Minds

The "greatest, weirdest, coolest, hardware in the American arsenal" is probably undermining the campaign in Afghanistan.

77 Economic Violence: It's Time to Change the Game

Captain Jonathan Pan, U.S. Army

The troop surge in Afghanistan does not mean there should be a corresponding surge in financial aid.

INSIGHTS

83 An Old Man's Thoughts on War and Peace

Professor Edward Bernard Glick

We may enjoy peace, but we shall never entirely rid ourselves of war because we are "wired" to fight.
