

SMA: We Can Never Say Thank You Enough To Our Wounded Warriors

Michael L. Lewis

From the Army News Service

Warrior Games and similar activities are “testaments to the nation’s support for our wounded warriors, honoring their service and sacrifices,” said the Army’s top enlisted leader.

Sgt. Maj. of the Army Raymond F. Chandler III and his wife Jeanne are at the 2013 Warrior Games, where they are visiting wounded warriors this week as they compete in a number of sporting events at the Air Force Academy and Olympic venues here.

“It’s always an uplifting experience to hear the Soldiers’ stories and their families’ stories and how they’re continuing to deal and grow stronger,” he said, referring to this year’s visit to the games as well as last year’s visit.
